General Cryptocurrency News:

- The next wave of smart phones is set to include increased crypto functionality with the Samsung Galaxy S10 rumored to include features such as cold wallet storage and rival HTC launching its Exodus 1 blockchain phone over the holidays, which comes preloaded with the Brave decentralized browser and is powered by the BAT token.
- As use cases for cryptocurrency continue to build, Facebook Inc. is said to be developing a cryptocurrency to allow users to transfer funds via their WhatsApp messaging app. The cryptocurrency is said to be a stablecoin pegged to the U.S. dollar with India being the company's first test market for the project.
- At least 15 central banks are seriously thinking about getting into cryptocurrency, according to a recent report from the International Monetary Fund. Central Banks cite the diminishing role of cash usage, cost efficiency and financial inclusion as primary drivers for the change.

BTC News:

- "Proof of Keys", an event intended to prove exchanges operate on a full reserve basis, essentially testing the Bitcoin solvency, took place on January 3rd. During this event, users were encouraged to withdraw all BTC to private keys. Most major exchanges passed the test; however, without all holders participating, the test was ultimately deemed inconclusive.
- Blockchain start-up Blockstream is now streaming the entire BTC blockchain from five satellites orbiting the Earth, meaning users around the world will no longer need internet access to spend the cryptocurrency on everyday transactions. The satellites also provide functionality to further support the Lightning Network.
- Online retailer Overstock is set to become the first national company to pay its taxes in BTC. Overstock will "pay a portion of its Ohio state business taxes in bitcoin". Ohio launched OhioCrypto.com in November, which allows businesses to pay some taxes with BTC.

Trading History YTD:

- After a steady decline in 2018, BTC has experienced a stable to upward trend in price to start 2019.

Current Environment:

- BTC's trading range was narrow last week, ranging between US$3,710 and US$3,940 before popping over the weekend to a high of US$4,080. At the time of print, the coin is trading US$4,046.
- Volumes have been relatively stable at 1.3 million coins per day.
